SONG OF THE EXILE.

BY A BENGAL OFFICER.

"In far distant climes, when the tear gushes o'er
For home, love and friendship, that charm us no more,
Oh, what on the Exile's dark sorrows can shine,
Like the rapture that glows at the songs of Laig Syne.
"The music of Scotis is sweet 'midst the scene;
But sh! could you hear it when sear roll between,
'The thes, and then only, the songs of Lang Syne.
The magic that dwells in the songs of Lang Syne.

"The spirit, when torn from earth's objects of lov Losess all its regrets in the chorus above, So in exile we cannot but cease to repine, When it hallows with cestacy songs of Lang Syne.
