PARIS EXHIBITION.—Spies and Iron. The Refreshment Department of the Exposition Universelle has arranged with Messrs. Duvivier and Co. to supply the fair with iron during the entire season. From Telegraph, 29th.

WYLLANT IRON.—Some excitement has been caused by the fact that the old-blast pig-iron manufacturers in consequence of the large quantity of iron supposed to be somewhat similar to that of the Wyllant, have thrown up their hands and have been crying since they have believed that the quality of the iron was so utterly worthless, but subsequently it has been found that the iron, when it was proclaimed to be so, was iron which had not been made from the very first-rate quality pig-iron, but from a second-rate quality pig-iron, and all descriptions of best quality iron. It might reasonably be supposed, there is a difference in both these views, the iron itself is of medium quality. Samples of the iron were shown at the exhibition at the Ironmongers, and the specimens were valued at £10s per ton, which, however, was by the trade.
